A WHITE SLAVE TRAFFIC CASE UP IN FAYETTEVILLE

Mayor McNeil Binds Man And Woman Over to Court on Charge of Acting as Procurers—Woman Has Gained Unenviable Notoriety.

Special to Telegram. Fayetteville, June 20.—The white slave traffic figured in the Mayor's court at this city today when Lonnie Long and his wife, Lina Riddle Long, were arrested and arraigned as procurers in the case of a handsome young girl about sixteen years old named Lillie Riddle, said to be a relative of the accused woman. The evidence of enticing and procuring was so strong against the accused pair that Mayor McNeil bound them over to Superior court under a $300 bond, failing to give which they were committed to jail.

The woman has before gained unenviable notoriety, being the widow of James Riddle, of Caxton, a mill village near here, who in August, 1908, was shot and killed by his son, Tom Riddle, who is now serving a penitentiary term for the crime. The woman under arrest played an anomalous part in this crime also.

Shortly after the murder she married Long, but under peculiar circumstances. Long had been a persistent suitor for the young widow's hand, but was repeatedly "refused," whereupon he attempted to take his life. The object of his affections then relented and became his bride.

Biggest of the Kind.

Massillon, O., June 20.—Four hundred and forty-one square feet of strawberry shortcake furnished the piece de resistance at the Sunday dinner for inmates of the Massillon State Hospital. The bakers at the institution assert the cake is the biggest one on record. It was 21 feet square, and made up of two layers, for which several hundred pounds of flour were required, and between these 500 quarts of berries, picked in the hospital gardens, were placed. Seven men were required to convey this great delicacy to the dining room tables, where 1,800 patients disposed of it, with fifty gallons of milk.

ROYAL GOLD PLATE USED AT BANQUET

Special to Telegram. London, June 20.—The coronation ceremonies are approaching the climax of splendor.

Tonight the most imperial banquet ever given was served in Buckingham Palace. The delicate food was served on the royal gold plate, weighing eight tons and valued at $15,000,000.

The Shakespeare costume ball tonight in Albert Hall eclipsed the magnificent affairs of bygone imperial ages in both beauty and regal trappings. American women were most conspicuous at the ball. "Their diamonds almost blind us," cried Premier Asquith. Alfred G. Vanderbilt had a party in a box with Mrs. George Law.

TAFT SPENT LAST NIGHT IN NEW YORK

New York, June 20.—President Taft came here tonight without advance notice, but few knowing of his visit. He heard "Pinafore" at the casino. Tomorrow he goes to Yale to attend commencement, returning here to speak at the Bankers and Canadians' club dinner.

Whales Off the Delaware Capes. New York, June 20.—The first school of whales sighted off the Delaware Capes in a decade was seen backing in the sunshine down there Saturday, waiting for a skillful seagoing hunter, according to passengers on the liner Seneca, just in from Cuba. Forty whales were counted by the Seneca's officers, a record for coastwise whale-seeing craft.

ASSAILANTS OF DETECTIVES GOT STREET SENTENCES

Three Men Before Judge Eure on Charge of Assaulting "Blind Tiger" Detectives—Appeal to Superior Court—Several Cases in Municipal Court.

Another long docket was disposed of in Municipal court yesterday morning. Several important cases continued from Monday were tried and these with the usual number of petty cases kept the court in continuous session excepting a short recess for dinner until 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

During the early hours of yesterday morning the police were in hot pursuit of the parties who had committed the cowardly assault upon Detective McKeel, who has been the chief prosecutor of the retailers in the recent cases against them. After a long hunt the three assailants were arrested and the trio, composed of John Ray, Charles Robinson, and John Rainey, answered to the charge of assaulting Mr. McKeel. The former defendant was held on the three charges—assault, carrying a concealed weapon, and assault upon the detective with a deadly weapon. The two former charges were not pressed by the prosecution on account of the lack of evidence.

The testimony in the case brought out the fact that the detective when walking down East Washington street about 8 o'clock Monday night was called by the defendants and waited for them to approach him at a point just below the bank building at the corner of South Elm and East Washington streets. Ray admitted that he struck McKeel but denied that brass knuckles were used in the blow, which was the only one passed as the detective fled from the scene with all speed.

The court held that McKeel's upper lip could not have been split almost to his nose without the aid of knuckles and the defendant was found guilty. In passing sentence the court stated that such an attack was against the very majesty of the law when its representatives were made victims of an assault of this nature. Ray was accordingly sentenced to labor for 6 months on the city streets. Notice of an appeal was given and the young man released under a bond of $250 until his trial in Superior court. Robinson and Rainey were convicted of being accomplices in the assault and each received a road sentence of three months. They appealed to Superior Court and gave bond in the sum of $150 for their appearance in court.

The case against E. L. Love for passing worthless checks was dismissed on the payment of the costs.

David Clark, tried Monday for being drunk and down, appeared for judgment in his case, which was postponed indefinitely for final decision. The police were instructed to keep a close watch upon him and to arrest him upon the first sign of diversion from good behavior.

Hilliard Caldwell was taxed with the costs for an assault. He was also the only one of the nine negro gamblers captured Sunday who was found guilty and he was fined $25 and the costs in this case. The other "dice" artists were dismissed.

John Mesley, the young white boy who seriously cut a companion, Ernest Richardson, when the two engaged in an affray, did not appear in the court and forfeited his bond of $25. The victim of the assault was cited to be present should the case again come to trial.

The case against the U. S. recruiting agent, W. H. McCullough, charging retailing, was again continued and judgment will be rendered in court this morning.

The cases against Thomas Walker and Charlie McKnight for disorderly conduct and against the Southern Railway for shifting cars on Sunday were postponed for consideration to this morning.

The Taft Fete Repeated.

Special to Telegram.

Washington, June 20.—At the suggestion of Mrs. Taft the Taft fete of last evening was repeated tonight. The grounds surrounding the White House were illuminated as on the preceding evening and the spectacle was indeed a grand one.

Change of Jailors.

After July 1 A. J. Apple, who has been jailor for the past year, will sever his connection with that institution and will be succeeded by J. G. May, who served as jailor for a number of years prior to the appointment of Mr. Apple.

Castro, Trouble Maker of Central America, Fomenting Another Revolution In Venezuela.

PLAZA BOLIVAR, CARACAS

PHOTOS COPYRIGHTED BY H. C. WHITE CO.

Cipriano Castro, former president of Venezuela, is reported to be on his way to that country with the idea of starting a revolution to put himself again in the presidency. All the powers will co-operate to keep Castro out of Venezuela. The American government has ordered a double guard at New Orleans and other places on the gulf coast in order to prevent the departure of any filibustering expedition in aid of Castro. A general warning also has been sent to all West Indian consuls and other agents to keep a sharp lookout for him.

CIPRIANO CASTRO

KRAMER

Defendant in Big Damage Suit Placed on Stand Yesterday Afternoon.

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, June 20.—In the Ware-Kramer suit this afternoon in Federal court the plaintiff, Samuel Kramer, was on the stand all the afternoon and was put through a severe grilling by Attorney Parker, for the defense. He recited the business methods and the rise and fall of his company. The retrograde came, he insisted, through Piedmonts with coupons, special deals and free goods by the defendant.

On examination the witness testified that the Ware-Kramer Company made no special inducements in free goods, rebate or otherwise, but Attorney Parker in the cross-examination drew the Thorpe deposition containing many letters from the Ware-Kramer Company files to show that the Ware-Kramer Company offered and gave these special inducements. The witness insisted that concessions were made only to jobbers in territory where they were not maintaining salesmen to offset the expense of salesmen in placing goods. In the midst of the cross-examination court took a recess to Wednesday morning.

Raleigh, June 20.—J. R. Chamberlin, of the Caraleigh Phosphate Works, Raleigh, gave verbal testimony this morning in the Federal Court, as a stockholder in the Ware-Kramer Co. which is suing the American Tobacco Co. for $1,200,000 damages for trust methods of destroying competition. Mr. Chamberlain attributed this failure of the Ware-Kramer Co. and its brand of White Rolls cigarettes to the fight that the American Tobacco Co. made against them with coupons and free goods, concessions that the independent competitors could not meet on anything like a living basis. Mr. Chamberlain was on the stand for about a half hour and broke the monotony of the reading of depositions that has been the order from day to day since the trial began. There were depositions of Thos. B. Scott and Hugh Campbell, of Richmond, read setting out much as has been done in previous depositions, the trust methods of destroying competition through coupons, free goods and similar methods, the Campbell deposition going into the details of the trust fight in many parts of the country and more especially the great Philadelphia fight in which the representatives of the trust are charged to have gone into the stores of dealers and spotted independent goods and taken steps directly to have them put off the market.

There was a deposition from J. H. McHenry, tobacco jobber, of Philadelphia, who testified directly that his experience and observation in the cigarette fight was that White Rolls cigarettes made by Ware-Kramer Co. were driven from the market in his territory by the A. T. Co. fight with double coupons, free goods and similar methods.

Onslow county is setting many other counties in the state an example in the encouragement of road building and the quickening of public sentiment for good roads in that the commissioners have decided to have constructed in each township in the county one mile of standard sand-clay road as an object lesson for education in the value of good roads. Representative E. M. Koonce, of Onslow is here to arrange with Dr. Joseph Hyde Pratt for a competent road engineer to be sent to Onslow to advise and co-operate in the location and construction of these special roads.

Wilkes county is now enjoying the enviable distinction among North Carolina counties of having more rural school libraries, more members of the public school teacher's reading circles than any other county in the state. Also there is only one county, Guilford, that has more local tax districts and Guilford has only one more than Wilkes. There are over 1,100 local tax districts in the state.

Governor Kitchen orders a special term of Pender county court to be convened July 17 for one week to try civil causes. Judge Ferguson is to preside.

OLYMPIC IS BRINGING MANY PASSENGERS

Special to Telegram.

New York, June 20.—A wireless from the Olympic, via Siasconset, says "The ship doing well, fulfilling all expectations. Due to arrive in New York Harbor early Wednesday morning. Little fog has been experienced. The Olympic brings 3,700 passengers."

WOOL

Tariff Revision Bill Passes House by Vote of 221 to 100.

Special to Telegram.

Washington, June 20.—The House this afternoon passed the Underwood wool tariff revision bill, the vote being 221 to 100. President Taft has sent a special message to the House, in which he says that the tariff board experts will not be ready to submit their report before next December at the convening of the regular session of Congress.

ARMFIELD CASE FOR ABANDONMENT WAS TRANSFERRED

Yesterday morning in Guilford Superior court counsel for the defendant secured a removal of the case of State vs. Thomas P. Armfield, the charge being abandonment, from Guilford to Mecklenburg county. It was argued for the defendant that if the offense charged was really committed it was while the defendant and the prosecutor were living in Charlotte. W. P. Bynum, R. C. Strudwick, of Greensboro; T. J. Gold, of High Point, and R. D. Gilmer, of Waynesville, are counsel for the defendant, while counsel has been employed to assist the State in the prosecution.

The case against Armfield has attracted no little interest because of the fact that he was arrested in Galveston, Texas, and officers were sent after him at great expense. Governor Kitchen only issued a requisition after an agreement that the defendant should be prosecuted to the limit of the law. For some time Armfield's wife has been living in Greensboro and it was claimed that the husband abandoned her after coming to Greensboro.

The Lorimer Hearing.

Special to Telegram.

Washington, June 20.—The initial meeting of the new Lorimer investigating committee was held today. But little evidence, other than that of a hearsay nature, was brought out.

ROAD SENTENCES FOR ASSAILANTS OF CONDUCTOR BELL

Joe White And Charlie Foard Given Two Years Each—Charlie Johnson, Robber, Sent to Roads—True Bill Returned Against Caleb Hanes.

In Guilford Superior Court yesterday afternoon the grand jury filed into court in a body and presented a true bill, charging criminal assault against Caleb Hanes, the young white man bound over to court from Justice Collins' court yesterday morning. Hanes will most likely be arraigned in court today and a date fixed for his trial.

A true bill was also returned against David P. Green, charging seduction under promise of marriage. This case has been set for Thursday morning.

A number of cases were disposed of yesterday, good headway being made on the docket.

The case against June Willard, which was in progress when court adjourned Monday afternoon, was continued until the next term on account of the illness of a juror. Willard was charged with retailing, having been bound over from the Recorder's court in High Point.

Charles Johnson was convicted of highway robbery, there being two cases against him. In one case he was given two years on the roads, while in the other judgment was suspended.

Joe White and Charlie Foard, the negroes charged with assaulting Conductor R. C. Bell, while beating a ride on a freight near Jamestown some months ago, were convicted and sentenced to two years each on the county roads. The charge was assault with intent to kill.

Alex Chaffin, Sr., and Alex Chaffin, Jr., were charged with larceny, and with receiving goods known to have been stolen. The younger Chaffin was convicted of the charge of larceny, while his father was found guilty of receiving stolen goods. No sentence was pronounced.

The case against Clifton Suggs, a young white man from High Point, was taken up yesterday afternoon and some time consumed in the trial. The defendant was charged with embezzling funds from the Western Union Telegraph Company, while he was in the employ of that company at High Point. The case was given to the jury late yesterday afternoon, but no verdict was reached.

HAMMOND

Presents Taft's Congratulations to King George.

Special to Telegram.

London, June 20.—John Hays Hammond had a well filled day. He lunched at the Kensington Palace, the guest of Princess Louise, an old friend of the Hammonds. At an audience with King George this afternoon he presented President Taft's congratulations. Mr. Hammond subsequently attended a reception in honor of Louis Botha, premier of South Africa.

CONFESSES ROBBERIES.

Eight-Year-Old Lad in Manchester, Conn., Puzzles Police.

Manchester, Conn., June 20.—The police here have a puzzling case in Edward Rudant, an eight-year-old boy who has confessed to a dozen carefully planned robberies which occurred recently. The lad is too young to be admitted to any institution in the State, and he has not been arrested, although the police declare that his extraordinary criminal tendencies make it unwise to allow him longer at large.

The boy has been a constant smoker of cigarettes for nearly half of his brief life time, and the police assert that his addiction to this habit has so weakened his moral sense that he really does not know right from wrong.

MR. PEARSON TO LECTURE ON BIRD LIFE IN AMERICA

Secretary of Audubon Society Will Give Stereopticon Lecture at Smith Memorial Building Thursday Night—Lecture Will be Free, Public Cordially Invited.

All lovers of nature will no doubt be gratified to learn that T. Gilbert Pearson, secretary of the National Audubon Society, has consented to give an illustrated lecture on bird life in America on next Thursday evening.

Mr. Pearson has for a number of years been in great demand as a lecturer in every part of the country. Calls have come to him from every quarter, from Maine to California and from the lakes to the Gulf. He has responded to these calls whenever he could spare the time from his work as Secretary of the Audubon Society. The study of bird life and animal life have been his life's passion and he is recognized today throughout the country as an authority on all questions touching these subjects. For years he has directed his energies with untiring zeal toward the preservation of birds of beauty, song and utility and the protection of game birds. His fellow citizens of Greensboro have as yet had no opportunity of hearing him lecture, and the announcement of his lecture on Thursday night will no doubt be heard with pleasure.

Mr. Pearson will make a brief statement during the course of the lecture, in reference to the permits issued to ship live quail from the State and to the offer of the manufacturers of arms and ammunition to give $25,000 a year to the Audubon Society for the use of game protection.

This lecture, which will be illustrated by stereopticon slides made by Mr. Pearson, will be free. It will be given at the Smith Memorial building Thursday evening at 8:30 o'clock. Dr. R. H. Lewis, president of the North Carolina Audubon Society, will preside.

The following will act as sponsors for the lecture: Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. H. Ireland, Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Long, Dr. and Mrs. L. M. Humphrey, Mrs. C. D. Melver, Mrs. R. F. Dalton, J. A. Odell, Rev. Melton Clark.

THE SEAMEN'S STRIKE LOOKS MORE SERIOUS

Special to Telegram.

New York, June 20.—The most alarming stage of the big shipping strike developed this afternoon when Vice President Griffin, of the International Seamen's Union, made a direct threat to the heads of all coastwise lines docking vessels here to call a general strike tomorrow. As an alternative he offered to hold a conference with the heads of the lines and the strike committee.

SENATOR WARREN TO WED.

Announces Coming Marriage to Miss Clara Morgan.

Washington, June 20.—Senator Francis E. Warren, of Wyoming, surprised his fellow-Senators today when he announced that he was to marry, in the near future, Miss Clara Lebaron Morgan, of New York and Washington.

Miss Morgan is the daughter of the late John L. Morgan, of Groton, Conn., and is about thirty-five years of age. In recent years she has spent her winters in Washington with her uncle, former Associate Justice Brown, of the Supreme Court, and is well known in Washington society. Senator Warren is sixty-seven years old, and has been a widower nine years. He has a son, Fred E. Warren, of Cheyenne, Wyo., and a daughter, the wife of Brigadier-General John G. Pershing, now in the Philippines.

Mrs. Lea Much Improved.

Special to Telegram.

Washington, June 20.—A report from the hospital says that Mrs. Luke Lea, whose life was saved Monday by the transfusion of blood from the arm of her husband, Senator Lea, is greatly improved. Her physician, Dr. H. S. Frey, says that her complete recovery is only a matter of time.

Winston Sentinel speaks at length about "killing pests by wholesale." We trust the allusion is to the killing of flies.

All that glittered at the Taft anniversary was not sterling silver. No doubt there was present a large sprinkling of nickel plated society.

When the truth is known as to how the Maine was destroyed, will we have the real explanation of why the war with Spain occurred?

This is "mentioning" time for Presidential candidates. Who will be the first North Carolinian "mentioned" as the Democratic nominee?

The alleged funny man who writes
"Sidelights" for the Baltimore Sun frequently allows even the side lights to grow dim.

We fail to see the need of having a department of "Harmless Thoughts" in the Wilmington Dispatch. All the thoughts "think" by the Dispatch are harmless.

Raleigh News and Observer says that Vice President Sherman has voted off four ties in the Senate and each time has voted wrong. It is entirely too much to expect "Sunny Jim" to vote right.

The railroad builders of Greensboro are not inactive. They are determined to build that line to Roxboro, Oxford and Henderson. The preliminary work is being quietly done, but it will be effective.

Wilmington Dispatch thinks this country will furnish the "peaches" for the coronation display in London. The statement is surprising. Thought all the "peaches" had congregated at Wrightsville for the summer.

The La Follette boosters claim the Republicans have a chance to win in 1912 with their man as standard bearer. With Taft leading they say defeat is certain.
As Taft is certain to be nominated and certain to be defeated, Democratic prospects are brighter than they have been in many years.

An accomplished newspaper correspondent at Hendersonville some days ago sent out a story in regard to the discovery of a subterranean river which flows under that town. It has since become clear that this river was discovered at the opportune moment. It will be needed as a dumping place for confiscated liquors.

Road improvement sentiment is steady-ly growing in North Carolina. The central highway plan has stirred additional interest in good roads. The people along the line of the proposed highway through the State heartily favor that plan and road improvement advocates everywhere believe that this movement will help to create sentiment in all the counties favorable to road building.

Guilford county continues to enjoy the advantages and the free advertising arising from having the best roads in North Carolina. From either standpoint they are worth their cost, and from the standpoint of their entire worth to the county they are many times as valuable as the sum of money represented in the investment.

Let no citizen of Greensboro say there is nothing he can do to advance the interests of his city. There is work for all. This is a period in the history of the city when earnest, honest, well-directed effort is needed and will be productive of large results. Look around and see what you can do to help build up the city, and then get busy doing something with that end in view.

Up at Massillon, Ohio, somebody made a strawberry shortcake which was twenty-one feet square. To make this cake five hundred quarts of strawberries were required. It is clear that this was a big cake, and those who have the leisure and speculative turn of mind for such things may figure out how much of this giant cake would remain after it had been attacked by about six lusty youngsters.
One of the remarkable things in connection with a small boy and strawberry shortcake is the fact that every square foot of the small boy's stomach appears to be able to receive about five square feet of cake.

GROWING EVERY DAY.

More than thirty cities have adopted the commission form of government since the beginning of 1911, and, as the Birmingham News says, "the movement is growing in momentum."

Alabama is among the States invaded by the new form of municipal administration this year. Georgia is now stirred up and Atlanta, Macon, Augusta and Columbus are looking into the matter. There is little doubt that the coming session of the Georgia Legislature will see the introduction and passage of a bill opening the way for these cities to make a change for the better.

The sweep of the movement is not confined to the South. This will be seen by reference to the following list of cities which have adopted the most efficient form of city rule yet discovered by the brain of man:

Alabama—Birmingham, Montgomery, Mobile.

California—Berkeley, Modesto, Monterey, Oakland, San Diego, Santa Cruz, San Luis Obispo, Vallejo.

Colorado—Colorado Springs, Grand Junction.

Idaho—Lewiston.

Illinois—Carbondale, Decatur, Dixon, Elgin, Hillsboro, Jacksonville, Kewanee, Moline, Ottawa, Pekin, Rochelle, Rock Island, Springfield, Spring Valley, Waukegan, Clinton.

Iowa—Burlington, Cedar Rapids, Des Moines, Des Moines, Fort Dodge, Keokuk, Marshalltown, Sioux City.

Kansas—Anthony, Abilene, Coffeyville, Cherryvale, Caldwell, Council Grove, Dodge City, Emporia, Eureka, Girard, Hutchinson, Independence, Iola, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Marion, Newton, Neodesha, Parsons, Pittsburg, Topeka, Wichita, Wellington.

Kentucky—Newport.

Louisiana—Shreveport.

Massachusetts—Gloucester, Haverhill, Lynn, Taunton.

Michigan—Harbor Beach, Port Huron, Pontiac, Wyandotte.

Mississippi—Clarksdale, Hattiesburg, Mississippi—Fayoult, Mankato.

North Carolina—Greensboro, High Point, Wilmington.

North Dakota—Bismarck, Mandan, Minot.

Oklahoma—Ardmore, Bartlesville, Duncan, East Reno, Enid, Miami, McAlester, Muskogee, Purcell, Sapulpa, Tulsa, Wagoner, Oklahoma City.

Oregon—Baker.

South Carolina—Columbia.

South Dakota—Aberdeen, Canton, Chamberlain, Dell Rapids, Huron, Pierre, Rapid City, Sioux Falls, Vermillion, Yankton.

Tennessee—Chattanooga, Memphis.

Texas—Arkansas Pass, Austin, Beaumont, Corpus Christi, Dallas, Denison, Fort Worth, Galveston, Greenville, Houston, Kennedy, Marble Falls, Marshall, Palestine, Port Lavaca, Sherman.

Washington—Spokane, Tacoma.

West Virginia—Bluefield, Huntington, Parkersburg.

Wisconsin—Eau Claire, Appleton.

In addition to these, Pittsburg has just adopted a certain form of commission government very much restricted, the initiative, referendum and recall features having been omitted from the enabling act.

It will be seen from a casual inspection of this list that the new form of government is making its strongest headway in the West and South. New England, always wary of things new, has hardly been invaded. New York is still without a commission government town or city, though Buffalo tried hard to secure a commission charter, failing only after great effort. The commission form of government is really of Southern origin, in so far as its principle is concerned, and it will be applied in hundreds of cities in the South within the next few years. In the list given, the absence of a commission government city in Virginia is not a fact of which to be proud.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

BERNHARDT'S TOUR ENDS.

Will Get About $250,000 Out of $1,000,000 Receipts.

Sarah Bernhardt returned to this city yesterday morning in her private car, Bernhardt, from a 35 weeks' tour through the United States and Canada. She traveled 25,000 miles, gave 285 performances, 90 of them being one night stands, in 103 cities, and brought in more than $1,000,000 in gross receipts, of which, it was said yesterday, her own share would be about $250,000 clear.

The famous actress did not appear to be the least fatigued by her arduous travels, but looked 50 per cent better than when she landed in this city from the French liner Provence on October 28 of last year. Perhaps the most wonderful feature of the trip was the energy shown by Mme. Bernhardt in seeing the various sights of interest in the cities she visited, which included a descent into a copper mine, a night in a bayonet shooting at alligators, a ride through the Homestead works, and mountain climbing in the West.

When asked for the secret of her health and youthful appearance Mme.
Bernhardt laughed and replied:

"I eat little, sleep plenty, work hard all the time, and not too much fresh air. I must work always."

William J. Connor, who arranged her tour, interrupted to say:

"What madame means is that she owes her health to the grace of the good God and works like the devil."

She partly understood what he had said, and, putting her hand on his shoulder, asked him to tell her more slowly what it was that had made the reporters smile.

On her trip she spent the greater part of the time in her private car, where she had every comfort, including a big brass bedstead. She had it on a side track, three or four miles from the station, so that she would not be disturbed by the noise of the trains. Her rehearsals were mostly conducted in the large dining-room of the car. She did 41 consecutive one-night stands without showing the slightest sign of fatigue, Mr. Sullivan said. Her car was kept filled with flowers.

In addition to her repertoire of 16 plays, Mme. Bernhardt created "Sister Beatrice" in San Francisco, where she played to $37,000 for 10 performances and $9,000 for the open air performance at Berkeley. After the performance of "Phedre" she played "Sister Beatrice" in the McDonough Theatre, Oakland, which added another $4,000 to the day's receipts. One of her most delightful stops was at Fresno, where her car was taken out five miles on a siding right in the midst of a glorious valley.

Mme. Bernhardt does not smoke, unlike so many of her countrywomen, and does not believe in suffrage for women, because she thinks that her sex is not physically fit to govern. She said that American women resembled French women in their manner of wearing chic costumes more than those of any other nation, and were therefore close to the best-dressed women in the world.—New York Times.

When You Carry the Load

(By CARA REESE.)

That is sufficient—when you have to carry the load. That is sufficient. You would gladly accept the whole garden from the kind friend who insists on loading you down with floral favors, but you smile like a cherub and murmur,
"that is sufficient,"—when you have to carry the load. It makes a difference.
That is sufficient. Nothing might give you greater pleasure than to receive the wealth of the farm produce, to enfold
in your arms the cabbage, lettuce and onions, to stuff your pockets with fresh laid eggs and with a cream jug hanging around your neck as a sort of ballast.
That is sufficient, the home-made jelly in tumblers, the dandelion wine in stone receptacles, the pickled varieties, the dried stuff, the fresh stuff, the latest in pies and poundcake, all good-will offerings to speed you on the homeward way. That is sufficient—when you have to carry the burden.

That is sufficient, the glistening agates
from the lake shore, the sculptured shells from the sea beach, the basket ware, the pottery, the trinkets and sonvenirs from all lands. That is sufficient, the specimens of petrified forest, of irridescent ores, of big trees and everything great that grows in the shape of coffee, grape-fruit, cocoa-nuts and "out west" corn and apples. That is sufficient—when a part of your hand luggage. You would most cheerfully take in all that comes your way at bargain purchase or as yours for the gathering and asking and bring home to the folks—unless you have to carry it.

That is sufficient—owing to the expense, mainly transportation. You are grateful to the bottom of your heart for the house and lot in the wilderness which is donated to you through bequest. You want nothing better in the shape of an offer than a sugar-cured ham of the home brand from the far south or a jug of syrup from a distant State worth its freightage in gold. You are thankful in spirit for the promised job on the other side of the earth; nothing would suit your inclination better than to reach out and lay hold on all the choice blessings—when the obligation, or the trainfare or express charges are not too expensive to carry.

That is sufficient—when you have to carry the load. That is sufficient the responsibility of position, the administration of affairs, the executive planning and directing. That is sufficient, the conducting of gigantic business, the manipulating of wires, the sending and receiving and the editing and publishing.
That is sufficient, a curate of souls, a Daniel come to judgment, a seer or pathfinder—when you have to carry the load, when you have to carry the fears and anxieties, the lives of the populace, the immortal future the strain of prophecy, the pack on the shoulders. Ah, good gifts have been tossed your way, office and position have come begging, domes-ticity has beckoned. But enough—when you have to carry the load.

HOW TO THINK

(By FRANCES WILEY.)

Few people realize how often education has the effect of producing stupidity. In a novel recently published the heroine is brought up in a unique fashion. It is more important that children should be taught how to think than what to think.

The latter they should do for themselves. They should be taught the art of logical thinking, of reasoning, the importance of will power, of quick judgment, of resoluteness, of courage, and of endurance.

This ground work having once been laid the rest is comparatively easy. Many children never really use their brains at all during their school career, except in the merely mechanical matter of "learning by heart," or repeating, parrot-like facts that have been instilled by the teacher.

The natural consequence is that when they go out into the world they are comparatively stupid, and continuously make blunders which could have been avoided if they had only known how to think.

The Dainty Side.

The pretty young thing of 20 fluttered up to the steward in a state of delicious indignation.

"Where's the captain?" she demanded.
On the bridge the steward told her.
Could she go up to him? Dear me, no!
Not on any account. Mustn't be disturbed.

But she went up, all the same. She had a grievance, and in comparison with this it mattered little whether they ran into rocks or sea fogs, or steered south-west by east or north-east by west.

"Captain," she exclaimed, "I've come to complain about the life preservers."

"Are there none in your cabin?" asked the captain, who, truth to tell, did not in the least object to being interrupted.

"Yes; but you ought to see the state
they are in," bridled the maiden. "Why,

RALEIGH OFFICERS WANT FORTUNE TELLER BACK FROM VIRGINIA

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, June 20.—The Raleigh authorities have procured from Governor Kitchin a requisition on the Governor of Maryland for Madam Hunter, the fortune teller who worked a number of people here for considerable sums of money under promise that she would exercise her mystic powers in their behalf for the solution of family complications and the averting of personal calamities that she represented to them were impending in one form and another. The requisition has been sent to Maryland with a view to ascertaining whether it will be honored before the expense of sending an officer to Baltimore for the fugitive is incurred. In the meantime the information has been received here that the woman has given $2,500 bond for her appearance Friday when the matter of whether the Maryland authorities will allow her extradition is to be decided.

Madam Hunter made her biggest known haul here through an imposition on the credulity of Mrs. Annie O. Eastman, well known dressmaker, for whom she undertook to exercise her magic in bringing back a near relative concerning whom she was greatly disturbed. The money was obtained at different times in installments as the charm was being worked.

She obtained $200 from a negro woman Viola Watson, whom she was to save from a terrible affliction of sores that she represented to the credulous woman that she was about to be plagued with through the conjuration of an enemy. A sealed box was given to her as a talisman to open which would mean death to her. This was carried to Chief of Police Stell by the woman after she became convinced that she had been imposed upon, and the chief opened it to find inside a blackish powder harmless and worthless.

LOOK OUT FOR ST. LOUIS TEAM

Bresnahan and His Band of Pill Tossers Playing Great Ball.

IS IT A FLASH IN THE PAN?

Last Season and One Before Cardinals Caused Leaders to Worry and Then Blew Up—Club Looks Stronger Than Ever.

By TOMMY CLARK.

Diamond experts all over the country have been figuring only four teams—New York, Chicago, Pittsburg and Philadelphia—in the hunt for the pennant in the National league. But few words have been said about the St. Louis Cardinals, yet that team has been going along lately, winning with surprising regularity. Any one who thinks that Roger Bresnahan's team is out of the race has another guess coming to him. They are not far behind the leaders at present, and if they continue to play as well as they have in the past month it will not be long before they are right at the top rung of the ladder, fighting for the main position.

Much credit for the showing of the team belongs to Roger Bresnahan. This is his third season with the Cardinals—the last of his present contract. He started with absolutely nothing—the worst outfit that has probably gone to the wars in the National league since the American became a major organization.

In individual makeup he has improved the club somewhat since that time, but not marvelously. Yet each year Roger throws a scare into the opposition and threatens, at least for a time, to run them all into their caves. The very first season, with that awful excuse of an outfit, Roger had the league on tiptoe and from the jump his poor weaklings dashed out like champions. It was not the men playing—it was just Roger's inspiration. He got out of the team all the baseball in those misfits. But that was little, and when it burned out the team sank back into its normal place.

Last year Roger had an improved club, but one still weak in two vital departments—hitting and pitching. It had probably the worst outfit of seven innumerable flingers in either league. The exceptions were Sallee and Harmon.

Last year, too, Roger made his annual play. Early in the season he drove his men hard, and at one time he had every club in the league save Pittsburg guessing as to the possibilities of his finish. But the team was not natively strong enough to stand up, and the superior quality of Brooklyn's pitching showed that club in sixth place, ahead of the Cardinals.

This year with a team that is a replica of last season's club, with the exception of three good pitchers, Bresnahan is once more ravishing the league with his terror.

The fans are asking themselves if this is a third flash in the pan—if the native strength in the club makeup is sufficient to enable it to stand up under a campaign for a one-two-three berth.

HOW M'FARLAND BECAME BOXER

Chicago Lightweight Says Blow on Proboscis Started Him Off.

FIRST BATTLE IN BOILER SHOP

After Receiving Sting on Nose Packy Sailed into His Opponent and Made Him Quit—Received $250 For His First Professional Fight.

"When that big fellow in the boiler shop yards in Chicago shot his fist against my nose something stung me and something told me right then that I was a prizefighter."

That's the way Packy McFarland says he started in the slam bang game.

"I tore into that negro," says Packy, "and smashed my right and left hands into his face so fast that he finally fell flat on his back, while the boiler-makers who had gathered around began to yell. The negro—his name was Fox—got up and came back at me. We both had on gloves. The men had seen to that. Well, when his black face showed up again, I cracked him four times on that same nose. This time he went down for good. Instead of coming back at me Fox crawled over to one side and began trying to take off his gloves." Now, right here is where Packy claims the original story got its start.

"You ain't quittin', are you?" said one of the boiler-makers in derision. "Get back in there and fight."

"Naw, sir-ee!" muttered Fox through his swollen lips. "I ain't gwine fight no more. I tells you all right now dat I ain't gwine fight no man what don't scatter his blows."

Packy swears that it was that fight with the negro boy in the boiler shop that made him a professional pugilist. He found out that it didn't pay to scatter his blows.

It was just five years ago that a little fellow called Packy by his desk mates slipped away from school and went to work in a boiler shop in Chicago as an apprentice. He received as salary the munificent sum of $10 a week.

"They kept me busy," says the little fighter, "chasing around the place after left handed monkey wrenches and that sort of thing for two weeks, and then I was promoted until I was allowed to hold the hot iron while a big fellow beat it with a hammer and stung me with the sparks. Sometimes they would let me use the hammer, but I never was much of a hammer thrower, and I used to spend a lot of my time toying with a set of boxing gloves that were kept around the place.

"Fox, the colored boy, allowed one day as how he could give me a trimming, and when the whistle blew I allowed he couldn't, and we went into the back yard to have it out."

Packy immediately thereafter conceived the idea that he was destined to be a hero of the ring, threw up his job and went in search of big money.

"You know I had to get home early every night," he confided, "and tell my mother that I was still working. This went along pretty good until the time came to come in with the money, and I wasn't there. The fighting game wasn't declaring any large dividends, and I had to beat it to my aunt's house to keep my mother from knowing that I was not working."

"After hanging around the gymnasiums for another month I finally got signed up for a preliminary fight with Johnny West. I licked him just as I did the negro, but even then the money wasn't coming any too strong. I got $2.50 for the fight, and my manager took $1.50 of it, and he had a regular job too."

CUBS HIGHEST SALARIED.

Several of Chicago Nationals Draw $4,000 or More Apiece.

The highest salaried big league team is Frank Chance's Chicago National league club. There isn't a doubt of this, in spite of the fancy price paid to Cobb, Mathewson, Crawford and Wagner.

The three Cub outfielders, Schulte, Sheppard and Hoffman, draw down a total of $12,000 a year, Hoffman getting more than either of the other two. Evers and King are close to the $5,000 mark. Mordecai Brown is over it, and Tinker gets in the neighborhood of $4,000. Chance himself pulls out $10,000 straight salary and also shares in the dividends of the club.

Why Delahanty Is Playing First.

Jim Delahanty is being played at first base by Hugh Jennings to give his leg a chance to mend. Del found it impossible to cover ground at second because of a bad knee which he injured last fall. He says that with rest his knee will mend and he will be able to fill his old position. But Del's hitting cannot be spared by the Tigers just now, so to keep him in the game he has been shifted to first base and O'Leary is doing stunts at second. Del figures that in a few weeks he will be able to play second again.

Miss Morgan's Message

Cassells stopped and stared in astonishment at the girl across the way. Even as he looked, the gesture was repeated. Cassells glanced up and down the street, which at this hour was deserted, and moved slowly on. It seemed impossible that a girl of such refinement could be deliberately beckoning to him, a total stranger, yet once more before he moved on the gesture had been repeated. Then someone had come and led the girl away from the window.

He detested such things and he strove to put her from his mind, yet his dreams were all about a girl with great masses of golden hair piled upon her shapely head. Her features bore every indication of gentle breeding and, constantly in his dreams, she beckoned to him.

It was the same the next day. As he came from his office the girl was standing in the sunshine at the window and again the beckoning gesture was repeated, while a merry smile displayed the full red lips and flashing teeth.

He went up the street with a curious sense of disappointment. He felt an interest in the girl that he could not explain and still less susceptible of explanation was the fact that he could feel an interest in any woman who would flirt with a stranger in the street.

He was genuinely glad when one morning the face did not show at the window and the front stoop was boarded up. He told himself that now he could give his entire attention to his business again, but he soon found out his error, for sleeping or waking he thought only of the girl who beckoned. In the end he was forced to confess to himself that he was in love with the girl.

He preyed upon him until at last a vacation became imperative and, turning his patients over to another practitioner, Cassells went to the mountains.

He arrived shortly before supper time and as he passed down the broad corridor toward his room, he came to an abrupt halt, while beads of perspiration stood out upon his brow.

Directly before him was the girl who had beckoned and not until she came close and Cassells could see that she was actual flesh and blood did his fears subside. He had thought for one horrible instant that she was an apparition conjured up by his diseased brain.

He met her after supper and as she gave her slim, cool hand into his fevered grasp, he breathed a prayer of thankfulness that he at last knew her.

"Are you the Dr. Cassells of Gordon?" she asked. He bowed his affirmative and she went on. "I remember a sign across the street from us. I live in Gordon, too. We moved there just before we came to the mountains."

"I think I have seen you," he said, staggered for an instant by her frankness. Could she be trying to recall to his memory her frantic efforts to attract his attention?

"I think I have seen you once or twice," she said carelessly; "you must be more neighborly when we return."

Grace Morgan turned her attention to one of the other men who formed her little court and presently Cassells slipped away to ponder over the meeting.

If he had beckoned to him, her reference to having seen him was to recall the fact, yet even now he could not bring himself to believe that he was right in his deductions. For two weeks he puzzled over the situation, while he devoted himself to Miss Morgan.

He made rapid headway in gaining her affections and though he was not a vain man, he felt that he had only to speak. Yet again his dislike of a common flirtation deterred him.

It was near the end of his stay that the situation cleared. He had been down to the postoffice in the light drizzle that kept most of the guests indoors, and as he came across the wet grass he discerned Miss Morgan standing at one of the dining room windows and she was making the same gesture that had first attracted his attention.

As she caught his eye, she threw up the window and called out an invitation to enter. Divested of his wet things he sought the dining room. Grace was still making that beckoning gesture, but as he entered she gave a little cry of triumph.

"I've got him," she called excitedly. "Please, doctor, will you raise the cover of that box, so."

She dropped the imprisoned fly into the tiny cage and watched a chameleon as it seized upon the insect.

"I'm getting to be quite an expert fly catcher," she said as she turned back to the window to resume her hunt. "I got this little fellow when we were in Florida last winter, and I've done nothing but catch flies ever since for him."

"You were catching flies for him the first time I ever saw you," he said with a sudden lightness of the heart. "Will you let me help—now and always?"

It was an absurd proposal, but she read his meaning and placed her hands in his outstretched palms.

"Not to catch flies for a chameleon—but because I love you," she said simply.

AFTERMATH OF CYCLONE IN CITY OF DANVILLE

Loss May Reach $200,000—City is Being Cleared of Debris—Damage Was Widespread And Extended to All Sections of The City.

Danville, Va., June 20.—After the rather terrifying experience of Sunday afternoon, when this city was swept by a cyclone, the citizens are settling themselves down, and things are moving along as though nothing had happened. The money loss is conservatively estimated at from $150,000 to about $200,000, divided among hundreds of firms and individuals.

The loss of stately old trees, when hundreds were mutilated on the principal residence streets, can never be replaced. The streets, which were littered with debris when morning dawned, had been almost cleared of the litter in the early afternoon today, and street car service was resumed on regular schedule all over the city. The upper portion of the city is in darkness tonight, and hundreds of 'phones are still out of commission.

Many persons saw the awful storm approaching, and the terrible funnel-shaped cyclone cloud, as it darted back and forth, leaving its terrible trail as it swept over the city. An automobile standing on one of the streets was blown up the street a considerable distance, though fortunately was not damaged. It became known during the day that several residences were struck and the occupants in several cases rendered unconscious.

Cleaning Up City. The business section of the city, where the storm was at its height, is rapidly undergoing changes. Large forces are busily engaged in removing the roofs which lie around in great numbers, erecting fallen poles, stringing wires, and replacing plate glass windows which were smashed.

It will be several days before all the damage to residences becomes known. At the baseball park the end of one of the Danville Fair Association's buildings was blown out, the score board at the ball park blown down, signs were overturned and wrecked. Eighteen or twenty panels of fence were blown down at the baseball park. The storage factory of the Farmers' Union on Craighead street, was partially unroofed, as was the Banner Warehouse, and almost all buildings in that locality suffered some damage.

Onion Soup.

Put six ounces of butter in a large saucepan over the fire and stir into it four large white onions, cut up, not sliced. Stew this slowly for one hour, stirring frequently to prevent its scorching. Add salt, pepper, cayenne and about one quart of stock, and cook one hour longer. Then stir into the mixture one and a half cups of milk and simmer for a few minutes. Have ready a soup tureen. In it beat the yolks of four eggs, with two tablespoons of grated parmesan cheese. Stir the hot soup into this, beating until it thickens a little. A slice of toasted French bread should be placed in each plate and the soup poured over it.

Fairy Loaf.

Four eggs, beaten separately; one and a fourth cups sugar; half a cup of butter; half a cup of sweet milk; two and a half cups of flour; one teaspoon cream of tartar; scant half a teaspoon soda; flavor to taste. Sift flour, then measure; add soda and sift three times. Cream butter and sugar lightly. Beat yolks to stiff froth and stir in. Whip whites to a foam; add cream of tartar and whip stiff. Add milk, whites of eggs and flour. Stir hard. Bake in a moderate oven about 30 minutes.

DULL POLISH IS CALLED FOR

Silver Must Not Be Made Too Bright—Some Hints as to Proper Care of Tableware.

Do not give your silver a bright polish, for the vogue now is to have antique silver for the toilet table as well as for the dining table.

You will have to do the polishing cleverly if you do not want it to assume the brightness of newly manufactured silver, so you must know how to remove the discoloration without too much brilliancy appearing.

Do you know that a bath in soapy water that is boiling hot is quite as effective as polish if a little ammonia is added to the water?

After washing it should be rinsed in clear, hot water, and you will find that all spots will have vanished. Too high a polish will not appear if wiped with coarse dry towels as each piece emerges from the bath.

You should make it a point never to leave a lot of silver to dry by draining, and the water collect on other sections, thus losing the clean look that is supposed to be supplied by the washing and quick drying necessary.

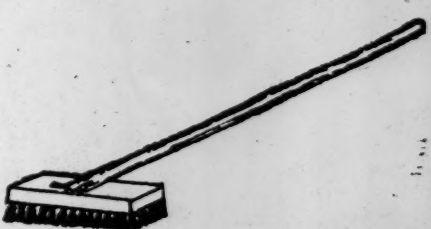

If silver which is in constant use is washed in this way it will not need polishing more than once a month at the most, and then the polish should be done discreetly, so that the new appearance is not given to it.

In homes where gas is used as an illuminant the silver discolours soon, though if mantles are used on the jets it reduces this to some extent.

MAKES THE SCRUBBING EASIER

Handle for Floor Brush Easy to Arrange and Will Relieve Many an Aching Back.

The back breaking labor of floor scrubbing may be easily avoided by arranging a handle for the floor brush.

As shown in illustration. An old handle from a broom or mop will answer the purpose splendidly; this is set into a hole bored in the top of brush and further strengthened by nailing three short strips of metal to the handle, and also to the top of brush, as illustrated. By changing the position of handle upon brush, this can also be applied to adapting an ordinary floor brush to a window washing brush.—Homestead.

COTTON LETTER TO J. E. LATHAM.

New Orleans, June 20.—The government map shows fair weather in Texas and Oklahoma, with no rain except in the Houston and Galveston section, cloudy in the central States except Arkansas, and lighter scattered showers in the Atlantic. Detailed records show rain in Oklahoma, but temperatures lower. No rain in Texas except Houston, Galveston and Columbus. Temperatures are considerably lower. The Galveston Dallas News says that the Texas acreage shows an increase of 8.8, condition 3.7 better; Oklahoma 18.4 increase in acreage and condition 9.2 better.

Cotton has held up well against the drought but is beginning to need rain. Local rains have fallen in spots but the drought has not been materially broken. Several of our correspondents in Texas report to the same effect—that there has been no general relief and precipitation is mostly insufficient, except at a few points.

Liverpool was about 10 better than due on old crops and two better than due on new. Spots 1 lower, sales 5,000. Our market opened about 6 higher and gained strength during the first hour, October selling to 13.14. A leading operator bid resolutely on the summer positions and the greater steadiness in July and August in New York gave rise to the opinion that the usual liquidation before notice day is about over. Fair weather in the western States and prospects for continued fair weather there as well as the trade demand for October and December, caused the firmer tone in new crops. Futures are at a large discount under spot prices.

FAIL TERM AT THE

STATE NORMAL COLLEGE.

The fall term of the State Normal and Industrial College will begin on September 13. The college last year had an enrollment of 909 students, eighty-seven of the ninety-eight counties in the State being represented. A notable fact in connection with the college is that nine-tenths of all the students who have graduated are now teaching or have taught in the schools of the State. The dormitories are furnished by the State and board is provided at actual cost. Two hundred appointments with free tuition, apportioned among the several counties according to school population, will be awarded to applicants about the middle of July. Students who wish to attend this institution next year should make application as early as possible, as the capacity of the dormitories is limited.

Do You Read the WANT ADS?

Have you found out what interesting news is contained in the want page? There is a reason why want ads are interesting to everybody. Supply and demand create a market. The man who has an article which he has no further use for, with the assistance of a little want ad, can find readily the other man who is looking for just that article. On the other hand the man who is looking for some particular article can find the man who has it and who it perhaps has not occurred that he can sell it, thus by means of the want ad purchasers and sellers for small articles get together.

Try a Want Ad in The Telegram, it makes no difference what you want, tell it here.

Trend of Population to Cities Largely Due to Unimproved Conditions. Washington, June 20.—"Philosophers who have been deploring the trend of population from country to city," said Logan Waller Page, Director of the United States Office of Public Roads, today, "might as well save their energy, unless they are prepared to help change the conditions responsible for the migration. At the root of this condition are the poorly kept roads of the country. It is certain that the farmers do not get the use of their share of the money earned in the United States. There are now over 90,000,000 people in this country, and nearly one-third are farmers and their families. The products of the farm are responsible for more than one-third of the wealth and commerce of the country. No one can say, however, that one-third of this wealth is used by the farmer in the betterment of the country districts.

"It is due to the inactivity and lack of co-operation among the farmers that country districts have become depopulated. The 'back to the country' movement has had a considerable vogue at sumptuous banquets in the cities, but the movement has not gotten far out of town, for the simple reason that life in the slums, despite all theories, frequently is much more livable than life in the country.

"While fine phrases can be made in the discussion of the joy and health of hand labor in the open air and under the sun, it is a fact that conditions in the cities are much more healthful today than conditions in the country. Sanitation is better, and the air in tenements is little worse than the air in many country houses, where, because of the extreme cold and lack of proper heating apparatus, the windows must be kept closed from October until May.

"Improper sanitation, poor drainage and poor highways in the country have brought about as great a percentage of disease as exist in the city. While country people are free, as a rule, from tuberculosis, they are extremely liable to typhoid fever, pneumonia and other diseases that are brought on by improper drainage and improper ventilation.

Change in Conditions.

"The work that is being done towards the improvement of roads throughout the country will change this condition. Improved roads will give to the country districts the improvements enjoyed by fashionable suburbs, and will improve drainage and wipe out isolation. In most localities life on farms invariably becomes, as a result of bottomless roads, isolated and debarred of social enjoyment and pleasures, and country people in some communities suffer such disadvantage that ambition is checked, energy weakened and industry paralyzed. Under such conditions, it is but natural that persons engaged in farming, especially the younger folks, should seek the life and gaiety of the cities. There they find recreation, variety, youth, beauty and music.

"The difference between good and bad roads is often equivalent to the difference between profit and loss. Money wisely expended for this purpose is sure to return tenfold, and now the States are expending in the aggregate $1,000,000 a day for road improvement, conditions in the country are likely to be so improved that the trend toward the city will be stopped and the overflow in the cities will turn to the country."

Twelve young ladies enjoyed Mrs. Hadley's hospitality, the contest in the alleys being quite spirited. Miss Margaret Adams made the highest score and was presented with a box of candy.

Mrs. Wright Entertains.

At her magnificent home on North Elm street Mrs. Clem C. Wright yesterday afternoon entertained from 4:30 to 6:00 o'clock in honor of her guest, Mrs. W. A. Devin, of Oxford, and of Miss Nettie Sloan, who is to be married on June 28 to Mr. C. J. Tinsley.

A long receiving line greeted the many guests on their arrival at the Wright home to enjoy the charming hospitality of their hostess. At the front door the hostess, Mrs. Wright, the guests of honor, Mrs. Devin and Miss Sloan, and Mesdames John A. Gilmer and Thomas Bernard welcomed the guests and ushered them into the parlor. This room and the library were artistically decorated with a predominance of pink in the color scheme. The dining room, in addition to the potted plants that were placed in numbers elsewhere was decorated with white draperies and flowers. This color scheme of pink and white was beautifully carried out and the rooms presented a charming view.

In the parlor the guests were met by Mesdames C. C. Taylor, G. W. Myers, Henry Farris, and F. P. Hobgood, Jr. In the library Mesdames E. J. Jeffries and Walter Lee served tea and sandwiches. In the dining room the hostess served delicious refreshments of ice cream and cakes.

Stevens-Combs.

Walnut Street Baptist church was the scene of a beautiful wedding last night when Rev. Herman T. Stevens, of Danville, led to the altar Miss Nannie May Combs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. H. Combs, of this city. Rev. K. C. Horner, pastor of the bride, performed the ceremony in an impressive manner.

The church was tastefully decorated in ferns and ivy. Just before the arrival of the bridal party Miss Nelle Fagge, of Leaksville, sweetly and impressively sang "Dear Heart" with Miss Esther Lowe as accompanist. Promptly at 9 o'clock to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march rendered by Miss Janie Fulton, of Danville, the bridal party entered in the following order.

First came the ushers, W. M. Combs and J. D. Schoolfield, of this city. Rev. J. B. Eller and Mr. Wm. R. Smith, of Danville, entering by opposite aisles and crossing over in front of the altar. Next came the maid of honor, Miss Bernice Combs, sister of the bride, gowned in pink marquisette with black picture hat and carrying pink sweet peas. She was followed by the bride, leaning on the arm of her father, who was met at the altar by the groom, accompanied by his best man, Rev. E. D. Poe, of Oxford. The bride wore a tailored traveling suit of dark blue serge with hat to match and carried a shower bouquet of Bride roses and lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony the young couple drove immediately to the station, where amid a shower of congratulations and rice they boarded No. 38 for Danville.

The bride is a young woman whose sweet and sunny disposition has won for her the admiration and esteem of hundreds of friends throughout the city and county, and by her sterling Christian qualities she has endeared herself to all who know her. The groom is pastor of the Second Baptist church of Danville and is an able and consecrated minister. He is greatly beloved by not only the members of his congregation but by hundreds of friends in the Virginia city.

The out-of-town guests were: R. L. Snead, Ellwood Snead and Miss Willie Morris, of Reidsville; Miss Janie Fulton, Rev. J. B. Eller and W. R. Smith, of Danville; Rev. E. D. Poe, of Oxford; Mrs. W. S. James, of Gainesville, Ga.; Miss Margie Suthers, of Concord; Miss Nelle Fagge, of Leaksville; Miss Maude Fagge, of Stoneville. The valuable and useful presents were a mute testimony of the esteem in which these young people are held by their many friends.

CONTRACT FOR PUMPING WATER EXPIRES SOON.

At yesterday afternoon's meeting of the Board of Commissioners Z. V. Taylor, of Greenville, representing the Public Service Company, appeared before the board and called attention to the fact that the city's contract with the company for pumping water would soon expire. Mr. Taylor stated that his company was willing to make a new contract to pump the water at actual cost or the city could install a steam pumping plant as it preferred. He stated that under the present contract the company has been losing several hundred dollars monthly on the contract and it did not feel able to continue to do the work at a loss.

Mr. Taylor submitted figures at which the company would contract to pump the water and the board informed him that the matter would receive immediate attention and his company would be informed as to whatever action was decided upon.

A PECULIAR MARRIAGE.

Girls what would you think if when you are to be married that the minister would have you stand under a sort of bell shaped canopy while performing the service. The marriage ceremony would consist of three words and your husband would be given two sticks tied together. They at any time he wanted to divorce you all that would have to be done would be to unite the sticks in the presence of three witnesses and you are a grass widow. Such is a Chinese marriage. You may think it funny but it is no more so than any number of other beliefs and rituals comprising their religion. Take for instance a peculiar custom at their funerals, where the corpse is preceded by two mourners who scatter to the right and to the left peculiar perforated pieces of paper believing that the evil spirit stopping to pick them up would miss the place where the dead man is buried and allow him to rest in peace. These and many other Chinese customs and beliefs will be fully explained Thursday and Friday at the Ottoway Theatre when the Chinatown and Bowery pictures will be the attraction. This is in addition to regular program.

WHY GOVERNMENT IS UN- ABLE TO CONTROL TRUSTS

Doubtless Due to Close Alliances Between Government's Prosecuting Officers And Law Firms Retained by Monopolies—Some History of This Nature.

Special to Telegram.

Washington, June 20.—Why has the government been unable to control the trusts?

While this question has not as yet been definitely answered, the House investigating committees are bringing out testimony which tends to throw light on the subject at least to the end of showing that the great trusts of the country have at some time or another had most of the government prosecutors on their payrolls.

United States Attorney General Wickard heads the list. Under oath he admitted that the last thing he did before taking charge of the prosecuting machinery of the nation was to draw down his share of a $26,000 fee from the sugar trust as a member of the New York law firm of Strong and Cadwallader.

Henry P. Taft, brother of the President, is still a member of this firm whose specialty is to show the sugar trust and other great industrial corporations how to evade the law and escape prosecution.

That Frank B. Kellogg, special counsel to the United States and widely advertised by the Republicans as the great trust buster, has received thousands of dollars from the government at the same time that he was receiving big fees for acting as attorney for subsidiary concerns of the steel trust, was developed in testimony before the Stanley committee.

It appears that Mr. Kellogg, besides pocketing the $30,000 recently paid him by the government for serving as "trust buster" under Roosevelt, also received from the steel trust $15,000 as extra compensation for legal services rendered their corporations.

On October 29, 1907, Mr. Kellogg was proven by his own testimony and documentary evidence in possession of the committee to have received a second $15,000 for extra services.

These sums were received by him in addition to the regular salary received by his firm from the trusts for many years past, and the last payment was made in the midst of the panic and only two or three days before the famous conference of Gray and H. C. Frick (ruling spirits of steel trust) with President Roosevelt, whereby they gained the permission of the President to commit criminal violation of the laws of the United States by absorbing the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railway Company, thereby exterminating their principal competitor.

This situation becomes still more remarkable when it is recalled that the man who appointed Kellogg—Philander C. Knox, now Secretary of State—was the man who went from the employ of the steel trust to the office of attorney general and who refused in 1901 to prosecute the steel trust when convincing evidence of its violations of law were laid before him by the anti-trust league.

Bristow Leads Reactionaries.

Senator Bristow of Kansas, assisted by the solid delegation of special privilege Senators, succeeded in tacking an amendment to the resolution providing for the direct election of Senators, which greatly endangers and may defeat that measure.

Bristow pretended the amendment, which retains federal control over the elections, would strengthen the probability of its final passage, when the fact is Bristow knew, as did every other Senator in the chamber, that the amendment would endanger and perhaps defeat the ratification of the resolution by the necessary three-fourths of the States.

The Bristow amendment is the same used by Sutherland of Utah, and the ring of Wall Street buccaners in the Senate in the last session to defeat direct senatorial elections.

The men who worked hardest for the Bristow amendment were Lorimer, of Illinois, Guggenheim of Colorado, Cummins of Iowa, Lippitt of Rhode Island, Clapp of Minnesota, Smoot of Utah, and Stephenson of Wisconsin.

The Bristow amendment was fought by La Follette, Gronna, Borah, Poindexter and Works, Republicans, and every Democrat in the Senate save one.

Lloyd a Hard Worker.

Victory in the House has brought hard work and responsibility to the Democratic leaders as well as honors.

As an example of the exacting duties of a Congressman of Democratic faith, take the case of Hon. James T. Lloyd, of the First Missouri District. Mr. Lloyd is chairman of the Democratic Congressional Committee and as such assumes general supervision of the campaign in every district in the United States. He is also chairman of the standing committee on accounts and closely scrutinizes every item of expenditure in the lower House. He is also chairman of the special committee on organization, or clerical force, a job with a world of detail. In addition to all these and his onerous duties as a Congressman, Mr. Lloyd delivers numerous addresses before societies, schools, etc., and is always to be found in his seat when the House is called to order.

Speaker Clark Against Gag Rule.

Speaker Champ Clark is opposed to the gag being applied to government employees. President Taft is endeavoring to enforce a Roosevelt rule which prohibits government employees from giving information even to members of Congress. The employees are also prohibited from calling the attention of members to any grievances. Speaker Clark denounces this rule as un-American, and declares he will listen to grievances of employees when they desire to come to him and he defies anyone to interfere.

TASTY WAY TO SERVE FRUIT

"Macedoine," a Mixture of All Kinds, is Something That All Will Appreciate.

Macedoine may be made with any combination of fruit, fresh or canned, dried or preserved. At this season of the year a mixture of fresh pines with oranges, prunes and any left-over fruit juices can be utilized. The little evaporated German cherries make a rich fruity juice. Wash, soak over night and stew gently until all goodness is extracted. Strain and sweeten. Add a pineapple, peeled and shredded; some nice prunes soaked over night, the pits removed and the meat cut in small pieces, two or three oranges peeled and cut in bits, and any surplus left over from canned or preserved fruits. Stew gently, sweeten to taste, and serve with buttered wafers or brown bread sandwiches. This will keep some time. If it shows signs of fermenting, boil up again.

If desired gelatine may be added to this, allowing a level tablespoonful granulated gelatine to each cup of the macedoine. Soften the gelatine in cold water, then dissolve over steam or add to the hot macedoine. The bits of fruit may be left in or strained out as preferred. Pour into small molds or on earthen dish, spreading the mixture about an inch in thickness. When firm cut in cubes.

Mexican Tripe.

Dip a thick honeycomb piece of tripe in butter, then in crumbs, and broil over a clear fire until well done, sprinkling over it while cooking three or four finely chopped green chilies. Melt in a hot soup plate one ounce of butter, adding salt, pepper and cayenne and one teaspoon of made mustard. Rub smooth, add half a teaspoon of vinegar, one tablespoon of Worcestershire sauce and the juice of a small lime. Lay the tripe in this sauce as soon as removed from the fire and serve with buttered toast.

Hen's Nest.

This is a delicious dessert or supper dish. Take five eggs, make a hole in one end and empty the shells. Fill them with blanc mange. When stiff and cold take off the shells. Pare the yellow rind very thin from six lemons, boil in water until tender, then cut them into thin strips to resemble straw and preserve them in sugar. Fill a small, deep dish half full of lemon gelatin and when it is set put the straw on in the form of a nest and lay the egg on it.

Potato Salad.

Slice cold boiled potatoes and put a layer in a salad dish; cover with thin slices of hard-boiled eggs and strewn with bits of pickled onion; when the dish is full pour over them a dressing made in the proportion of one tablespoon of salt to half as much pepper, and the same quantity of made mustard; beat up well before pouring over the salad; let all stand ten minutes or more before serving.

Laundry Hint.

To wash flour sacks shake well, pour kerosene on the lettering, and roll up over night. In the morning wash in hot suds. They will look like new muslin. Also a little kerosene poured into the boiled starch. This will prevent the irons from sticking.

Currant Buns.

Three tablespoons butter, three-fourths cup sugar, one egg, one-half cup milk, one-half cup currants, one and one-half cups flour, one and one-half teaspoons baking powder, a little salt. Flavor with cinnamon or a little vanilla. Bake in muffin tins.

MOST USEFUL KITCHEN TOOL

Invention of New York Man Speedily Removes Eyes From Fruit and Vegetables.

One duty that takes up a lot of the cook's time and tries her temper and patience is the operation of removing the eyes from fruit and vegetables. It is usually accomplished by digging the eyes out with the point of a sharp knife. A New York man has designed a little implement which does this work in a jiffy and which should prove a popular kitchen tool. The eyer is a simple affair, a wooden handle having a spoonlike metal projection. The bowl of the spoon is very sharply pointed, however, and all the edges are sharp. Consequently, eyes can be dug from pineapples, potatoes or other fruit and vegetables with the greatest ease and speed by merely scooping them out with the spoon instead of circling around them with the end of a knife. The utensil can be made so cheaply that it is within reach of any housewife.

LOOK TO THE GARNISHMENT

Simple Touches Will Be Found to Add Greatly to the Pleasure of a Meal.

A great deal of the pleasure of a meal is in the service, not in elaboration or much pomp, but in those dainty touches that prove an artistic sense of the beautiful. It takes a little more trouble to allow plain boiled rice to cool in a circular mold and fill in the center with a hash or a thick purée of tomatoes, but by so doing the luncheon of hash and rice is transformed from the ordinary dish to one that looks tempting.

Garnishing is a question of taste. Throughout most of the years a few leaves picked from shrubs or trees and tucked in on the edges of a dish of fruit enhance the appearance of the dish, while for other purposes, such as cold meat and butter, parsley ought to be remembered always.

A touch of color always looks well on a dish, and carrots, beetroots, cucumber, lemon in slices, or section of hard-boiled egg and tiny tomatoes all lend themselves to garnishing. Canned fruit is effective with puddings and jellies.

Cream or Squash Soup.

Two cups scalded milk, one slice onion, one-quarter teaspoon of celery salt or stalk of celery, cut in pieces, one-half teaspoonful salt, one-eighth teaspoonful pepper, three-eighths cup cooked and strained squash, two tablespoons butter. Heat onion and celery with milk in double boiler. When hot, strain and add squash. Melt butter and add flour, salt and pepper. Stir till smooth. Dilute with a little of the hot milk, then stir into the hot mixture. Cook ten minutes, strain and serve with crisp crackers.

Braised Lamb's Liver.

The lamb's liver may be cooked in a casserole instead of the braising pan. Dice a half pint each of potatoes and carrots and parboil them for five minutes; then drain. Peel a dozen button onions or cut one large one fine. Make a rich, well-seasoned brown sauce; pour it over the liver and vegetables in the casserole. Fasten the cover down with a thick paste of flour and water and cook for three hours in a slow oven. That the aroma may not be lost, do not loosen or remove the cover until the dish is on the table.

Buttermilk Biscuits.

Here is a recipe for buttermilk biscuits: Two cups of good buttermilk, one mixing spoon of cream, two teaspoons (a little rounded) of soda, two teaspoons also of cream of tartar (the cream of tartar in rule for biscuit is right, so don't be afraid), a good pinch of salt and flour to make stiff enough to roll out and cut. Either dissolve the soda and cream of tartar in milk thoroughly or else sift with the flour as preferred. Bake in a quick oven.

Rhubarb Short Cake.

Make a dough as for dumplings. Roll out and divide in two pieces. Spread one with soft butter, lay in a greased pan and cover with the second piece. Bake in a quick oven and when done carefully pull the two layers apart. Arrange on a platter with layers of stewed rhubarb between and over the top. Serve with a cold custard sauce or sweetened cream.

Sandwich Filling.

One-half pound American cheese, three hard-boiled eggs, three pimentos. Chop the eggs and the pimentos fine, grate the cheese, and mix all together, spread between slices of bread and butter. This makes an excellent sandwich for afternoon tea.

CALEB HANES, CHARGED WITH ASSAULT, SENT TO JAIL WITHOUT BAIL

Hearing Before Justice Collins in Sensational Case---Hanes is Charged With Criminal Assault on Young Woman at Brown Summit---Hanes May Be Arraigned Today.

The preliminary hearing in the case against Caleb Hanes, in which two warrants for serious offenses had been served, was held yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock before Justice of the Peace D. H.
Collins. The young man was tried on a capital charge, that of criminal assault.
After hearing the evidence Squire Collins bound the young man over without bail to be tried during the present term of Superior Court.

The prisoner, a tall, stalwart young man, with a dejected air, was led into the office of the justice under the charge of Deputy Sheriff George P. Crutchfield.
Already in the room were the witnesses for the prosecution, the victim of the young man's attack, Miss Maggie Faucette, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J.
Fletcher Faucette, her neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Shaw, and Justice of the Peace Richard Moore. All parties concerned are residents of the vicinity of Brown Summit. John N. Wilson appeared as counsel for the prosecution, and Col. John A. Barringer represented the defense.

Miss Faucette was the only witness placed upon the stand. Prompted by the questioning of her attorney the young lady related all the circumstances of the horrible crime inflicted upon her. She stated that she was 17 years of age and lived with her parents on a farm about a mile distant from Brown Summit. Her nearest neighbors were the Shaws, who live about three-quarters of a mile away, and with whom the defendant, Caleb Hanes, had been boarding for some time and working during the week in clearing logs to be carried to the near-by sawmill. The neighbors were firm friends and visited regularly between themselves.

Almost two months previous, while visiting these friends, Miss Faucette was introduced to Hanes. She continued visiting at the house of the Shaws regularly two or three times every week. On most of these visits she was in the company of the young man and the two soon became lovers. This was done without the knowledge of the girl's parents and when she agreed to marry Hanes the couple planned an elopement. An engagement was made for them to meet on last Monday, the night of the 12th, at a spring some distance from the home of the girl and arrange the final details of the flight Tuesday night. She was unable to meet her suitor without detection and so did not keep the appointment. The following evening the pair met at the spring each clad in their best clothes preparatory to the wedding. Together they started to walk the short distance to Brown Summit where they planned to board the train and go to Danville for the marriage. At the time the man had not secured a marriage license although this fact was unknown to the girl.

The road to their destination led the couple through some dense woods and it was at this spot that Hanes committed his dastardly deed. The girl testified that in the midst of the woods the man suddenly stopped and began cursing, saying that he was not ready to be married and was not going to be. The girl attempted to return home but he restrained her by brute force, despite the frantic efforts of the victim, who is slight of stature and weak in appearance. He threw her to the ground and accomplished his purpose.

Miss Faucette said that she struggled hopelessly to the limit of her strength, screamed for help, and pleaded vainly for mercy from the brute throughout the progress of the crime. When he again allowed her to rise she attempted to flee to her home, but he captured her, and spreading his overcoat on the ground he lay down for the night and held her tightly in his embrace. He slept for several hours and again attacked her. In this manner the girl spent a sleepless night, vainly watching for a chance to escape. Through the entire night Hanes kept a pistol lying at his head, but did not threaten her with it.

The following morning, Wednesday, Hanes forced the girl to say that they were married and the pair returned to the home of the Shaws. The man promised to come to Greensboro with her the following Sunday, which was the 18th, to be married, and to save her honor the girl obeyed and told her friends and relatives that she was wedded to Hanes.
During Wednesday and Thursday the couple lived as man and wife, Hanes working during the entire day and returning to her in the evening. On Friday night the man left, promising to return, but the officers were pursuing him at the time and the girl did not see him again. She did not know who had signed the first warrant charging him with seduction under promise of marriage, for not until Saturday at noon after she had received a message from Hanes, which stated with an oath that he would not marry her, did she relate the occurrences to Mrs. Shaw. The same afternoon she went to her home and later went before Justice Moore, of Brown Summit, who had been told of the affair by Mr. Shaw, and had sent for her. Here she signed the second warrant for Hanes charging fornication and adultery, but it was not served upon him, the prosecution including all the charges in serving the last warrant for criminal assault, the punishment for which, if the prisoner is convicted, means death in the electric chair.

Hanes was captured late Saturday evening.

Although the defense has a hard case, they intend to show that criminal assault cannot be charged because the girl did not leave the man during the night in the woods and because she was content to assume the marriage relation with him for two nights at the Shaw home. The defense also relies on the fact that on last Monday evening the girl sent two messages to the prisoner in jail saying that "if Caleb would take her and treat her right, she would have him."
The man returned a message saying that he would marry her if she would consent after all the happenings. The girl accepted the proposal and promised to become his wife. It was also shown in favor of the defense that Hanes had always intended marrying the girl and had even requested Mr. Shaw to obtain his license for him at Greensboro.

For the War Appetite.
To Make Mexican Chili Con Carne.— Soak two cupsful of chili beans over night, boil three hours, add 1½ pounds of chopped beef, a tablespoonful of salt, cayenne pepper and chili powder to suit taste. Boil together for 20 minutes one quart of tomatoes, three tablespoonfuls of camasa seed and a chopped onion. Rub through a sieve, add to the beans and meat, also a tablespoonful of butter or a piece of pork fat chopped fine. Keep covered with water and cook. The longer chili cooks the better it is.

Mulligatawny Soup.
Take three quarts of liquor in which two chickens have been boiled, and add four onions, one carrot, two turnips and one head of celery, cut up fine. Set over a hot fire until it begins to boil and then aside to simmer for 20 minutes. Then add one tablespoonful of curry powder and flour. Mix well and boil three minutes and strain.
In serving add some pieces of the white meat of the chicken. If too thick add boiling water.

Spanish Cream.
Soak one-half box gelatine in one quart of milk for one hour. Then put on the fire and stir until it begins to thicken. Add the yolks of three well-beaten eggs and a cup of sugar. When it comes to the boiling point strain into a mold and flavor with vanilla.
Beat the whites with three tablespoonfuls of sugar, flavor with vanilla, and use as a sauce when the cream is ready to serve.

Smothered Chicken.
Split a spring chicken down the back, double the flippers under the back and cross the legs naturally; put a little butter all over the chicken and dust it with pepper, salt and flour; place it in a baking pan, cover it with a second pan, set it in a hot oven for 15 minutes, or until browned, then turn it over, add a cup of water, cover it again with the pan and cook until tender.

New Strawberry Shortcake.
Cut puff pastry in squares or round pieces, then bake. When cold spread with sweetened, crushed strawberries, then cover with another round of paste, spread strawberries on top.

WASHINGTON IS SOCIAALLY DULL

Rush From National Capital Begins In Earnest.

TAFTS GIVE LAST FUNCTION.

Celebration of Silver Wedding at the White House Ends the Season—That Historic Mansion Has Been Scene of Many Brilliant Events in Recent Years, With More Possible.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.
Washington, June 20.—(Special).— June is "get away week" in Washington. All those with summer homes and those who can live in summer hotels or who can by any possible means leave the national capital make a dash from the city and live elsewhere during the summer.

The fact that congress is in session makes a little difference this year with certain members of the official set, but it does not make the slightest difference with the social set. They pack up and leave just as if there were no such thing as Canadian reciprocity, the farmers' free list, the wool schedule or the election of senators by direct vote.

There has been the farewell round of dinners and parties, the last important function being that at the White House, when President and Mrs. Taft celebrated their silver wedding. The exodus from Washington was postponed somewhat by that function, and even those who had departed returned for the event.

White House Events.

The White House has been the scene of a number of important social events during the past few years. One daughter of President Roosevelt was married in the historic mansion; another made her debut there. President Taft's daughter made her debut in the White House, and now the Tafts have celebrated their silver wedding.

Not in a decade have so many events personal to the families of the occupants taken place in the White House.
And there is yet time for additional celebrations. No one has yet reported the engagement of the president's daughter, but there is plenty of time for her engagement and marriage before the end of the president's term, even if he should not be chosen a second time.

Gone Glimmering.
Very few people believe that it will be possible to amend the constitution for the election of senators by direct vote through any legislation passed by the present congress. The disagreement between the house and senate will probably make it impossible to reach an understanding, and the southern men have asserted that their states will not ratify the amendment as it passed the senate. The vote on this proposition is said to mean a recession of the wave of radicalism that has been sweeping over the country.

Constitutional Wrangles.
It is unfortunate that the framers of the constitution did not furnish a concordance or book of interpretations of every word and sentence of the constitution. It would have saved untold millions in litigation, and it would have also saved everlasting and ineff-able debate in the United States senate.

Just why men will wrangle and quarrel over the constitution on questions and contentions of which there can be no possible consequence is one of the marvels of the capitol. And whenever a constitutional question is raised senatorial desks are opened and out come the copies of the constitution, and heads are bent over it with more attention than is given to anything else. Every senator, especially if he is a lawyer, believes that he is a constitutional authority and can correctly interpret the fundamental law of the land.

If the men who made the constitution can look over the senate gallery and listen to the discussions of that instrument they must come to the conclusion that either they were or the senators are little learned in law-making.

Roasting the Newspapers.
Whenever Senator McCumber makes a speech it may be asserted without fear of contradiction that he will "roast the newspapers." How he does dislike them! He could not refrain from calling attention to the part newspapers would play in upsetting all political conditions if senators were elected by direct vote of the people.
"They will be bought by capitalist candidates," said the North Dakota senator, "and papers will be established to carry on libelous campaigns."
And more to the same effect. Mc-Cumber's chief grievance against the newspapers is that they are helping to put through the Canadian reciprocity agreement, to which he is violently opposed.

Slayden on Mexico.
Congressman Slayden of Texas has a rather intimate acquaintance with affairs in Mexico. "There will be disturbances there for years to come," he remarked. "They have driven out the only man who could keep peace and order in that country, and we shall now see what will happen when his successors try to govern. The people of those southern countries require a strong man at the helm."

Uncle John's Sense of Humor

By Ruby Baughman

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

Margaret was toiling along through the Los Angeles chamber of commerce behind her two prosaic kinfolks.
Like the humming drone of his own thrashing machine, Uncle John prosed over silly statistics and poky processes. She was half-gigglingly commenting to herself as she tagged doggedly along after Aunt Eliza's amply-constructed, black broad-clothed form, that Uncle John ought to be prosecuted for bigamy, on the ground that he had two times as much wife as he had when he first married, when she discovered two grey eyes, under a broad hat brim, answering her chuckles with wrinkly twinkles.

The haughty disdain which she dutifully tried to spread over her amusement fell before the good-natured appreciation of her need of a relief expedition. She bowed, tentatively and reservedly. The hat lifted in a most dignified acknowledgement and its owner advanced, holding out his right hand. Margaret placed her brown glove within his reach, with the affirmation:

"I am very glad to meet you here, very glad to see you again." In answer to Aunt Eliza's backward look of inquiry. The aunt's exclamation attracted the attention of Uncle John.

Margaret led her new-found friend up to her guardians.

"I am glad to introduce to you a very old friend from Iowa. This is my uncle and aunt, with whom I am spending my summer vacation, Mr.
Livingston."

Aunt Eliza only exclaimed again, aloud, and started to say that which Uncle John interrupted by an emphatic wave of his big capable-looking arm.

"I am delighted to know you, Mr.
Livingston; delighted to know you."

Then taking an observation of the young man's evident intention to fall back in step with the niece, he reached forward firmly for the young man's arm, pulling him into step.

"If you are from the middle west, most of our agricultural processes and products will be new and interesting to you. Now, here is—" and beginning with a peroration about prunes, based on the huge elephant constructed out of dried specimens of that much derided boarding house favorite —a frightful, wobbly-kneed example of what industry, coupled with violence of imagination, energetically misdirected, can perpetrate—Uncle John led him by dried-fruit-bound paths into the mysteries of California farming.

Silently, not to say patiently or re-sentfully, Margaret walked along with Aunt Eliza. What profit from her transgression if it not only furnished no escape for her, but even afforded a new sacrifice upon the altar of Uncle John's zeal for acquiring and imparting information. Piloted by Uncle John, the humorless, the quartet stopped before a model fruit farm, worked out in papier mache.

"This ranch, Margaret, which is here reproduced belongs to your aunt's nephew, Jack Jenkins. I have asked him to take dinner with us at the hotel tonight and you will meet him there. He's a good chap. I never caught him in a false position but once, and then I think the fault was not altogether his."

The young man, with longing looks toward Margaret, showed signs of breaking away from her uncle's restraining grasp.

"All he needs is a housekeeper—a wife, I mean, home-maker, like your Aunt Eliza's been to me," droned Uncle John, stating that romantic situation as one might speak of the number of seeds in a prune elephant. "But he is not much for women folks. He says it takes him six days to figure out what a woman means by what she says and by that time he's forgotten what it was she said."

The man with the sombrero flushed with shame over this account of so unappreciative a member of his sex.
"Perhaps he never met the one woman," he hesitatingly offered in extenuation.
"Maybe," answered the guide of this personally conducted party. "He has sense enough about other things. Now that raisin plant is modeled after one of his."
Margaret lagged farther and farther behind out of hearing.

PATRIOTS TAKE 11 INNING GAME FROM THE HORNETS

Scores Made in Seventh And Eleventh Inning —Hard Fought Contest.

When Manager "Rabbit" Doyle of the Patriot team crossed the rubber on the throw-in of "Chic" Doak's sacrifice fly he brought to a close one of the best and most exciting games seen on the local diamond this season. The final score was 2 and 1, the 1 run being Charlotte's end of the game.

It was eminently fitting that Doak should be the one to bring in the winning run, for his work was the outstanding feature of the game. Never did one man have so many chances when clean fielding counted and in every instance he was equal to the occasion. Whether it was fielding bunts from the bats of the Hornets, punching a man at third, catching foul flies, getting a ball that Lowman had thrown away and catching a man at home—wherever the opportunity offered itself Doak was "right there with the goods." A hobble in any one of two or three plays he made would have lost the game. At the willow he also starred. In the seventh he led off with a hit and scored on Lowman's single, tying the score, the Hornets having made their only run in the first half of the same inning.

After the one run on each side was made in the seventh inning the game rocked along until the eleventh frame. Several times runners were on third; twice Charlotte men were put out at home—but neither side was able to break the tie. In the eleventh frame Charlotte had the spectators breathless—men were on second and third—but gift-edged work, and especially the running catch of Rickard, saved the day.

In Greensboro's half of the eleventh with no one out, Doyle singled to right field. Fuller sacrificed him to second and Doyle went to third on the play at first. Doyle's taking this chance aided materially toward his getting a run and ending the game. Sheesley was afraid of Clapp and gave him a free pass to fly. Doak went out on his sacrifice fly to left field and Doyle crossed the rubber as the ball went wild over Malcolmson's head on the throw in. The game ended with only two men out.

The contest was featured by the fast infield work of the locals, the shoe-string catch of Clapp's in the first inning, Rickard's outfield work, and Garman's and Agnew's splendid infield work for the visitors. Doak, Doyle and Stuart made the hits that were responsible for the run getting of the locals, while Coutts lined out a couple of pretty doubles on Charlotte's side.

It is hard to say which pitcher did the best work, but judged by results Rubé Eldridge had the best of the day. Not a single earned run was made by the Hornets, although they got ten singles from his offerings. The Patriots got only five hits but they used them to an advantage. Errors were too plentiful in the game but Stuart's in the seventh was the only one that aided in the run-getting, and this was excusable. He threw out to second, but some one should have covered the bag and stopped the ball.

SPARTANS WON FROM ELECTRICIANS IN A CLOSE GAME

Spartanburg, S. C., June 20.—Today's game was no pitcher's battle. The locals won by better fielding at the critical points 5 to 4. Wolfe pitched the best game but all the errors made behind him counted in the runs of the locals. All except one of the locals' errors counted in the visiting team's runs, but they were not quite so critical as those made by the Electricians. Score by innings:

DIAMOND DUST

Where They Play Today.
Greensboro at Charlotte.
Winston-Salem at Greenville.
Anderson at Spartanburg.

Charlotte goes down to fifth place.

Eldridge certainly knew just how to handle the Hornets.

Our estimate of Doak is that he is about the best player in this league.

These 11-innings contests are alright if they end well, as that one did yesterday.

"Rube" made them believe they were getting an opportunity to sting, but they weren't.

Just like holding candy out to the children then snatching it back.

Stuart was always at home plate ready to jab the ball and his fist in their stomachs if they attempted to come home.

The Patriots go down to Charlotte today to show the doctors of the state the genuine article of ball.

"Rabbit" Doyle and his men don't know what it is to quit playing until the game is over.

On account of the State Medical Society in Charlotte today's game between the Patriots and Hornets has been transferred to the Queen City. The Twins have also transferred tomorrow's game there.

Carroll is still out of the game but will probably be able to play next week. Ware is still on the bench, but is rapidly recovering from his injuries and can be used in an emergency.

Triturated Dope From the Charlotte Chronicle.
Ain't no getting round it—Greensboro has our Angola.

We had 'em beat, but they never found it out.

Manager Clancy is getting a reputation for kicking that doesn't taste good in this league.

If there is any little end of the batting order of Greensboro's team, it hasn't been discovered yet.

Bauswine must have thought he had 'em scared to death, but, lord, how can you scare a bunch that don't know when it's beat?

Just as Bauswine was on the verge of making another record for himself Doak had to butt in and spoil the whole business.
